In the light of the experience of the Covid-19 pandemic, the Workshop intends to offer a reflection on certain ethical values that proved crucial in this circumstance, but also an analysis of the challenges posed by a necessary ethical, medical and ecological 'conversion'.

The aim is to give an original contribution to the important debate on public health and the problems that this health emergency has highlighted. To make sense of what has happened and not to lose the lessons learned from this crisis.

A valuable lesson for a substantial renewal of societies and for a fairer and more sustainable future.
