

You can sign-up now for the Workshop 2017

From October 5 to October 6, 2017, the Pontifical Academy for Life will host the Workshop, “Accompanying Life: New Responsibilities in the Technological Era,” to take place during the 23rd General Assembly of Members.

The Workshop is intended to focus on the impact of technology on human life in all of its stages, from conception to death. It will also address the anthropological aspects of parenthood, the cultural features of the civilization of efficiency, and the relationship between technology, justice, and economic resources. All of this raises important and urgent ethical issues which call everyone to appreciate and assume the responsibilities that we have toward every human life. The workshop program is available in the PDF file below. For information and registration:
